

Hi Vaso,

I can't wait to tell you about my last visit to the British Museum in London last month.

The museum is one of the world's largest and most important museums of human history and culture.

It set up in 1753 and opened in 1759. It was the first museum in the world to open to everyone. It is the third most popular art museum in the world. It has more than seven million objects, which document the story of human culture from the beginning to the presents.

I hope someday to visit it together!!!

Love Sophia.
